A Dark and Stormy Night

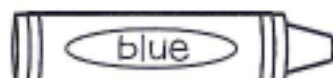

On a dark and stormy night, Helen peeked out her bedroom window. A loud boom of thunder scared her, and Helen jumped!

Helen took a deep breath. She knew it was just a thunderstorm, and she shouldn't let it frighten her. She stepped back near her bed, ready to try sleeping again- when suddenly, her foot touched something furry.

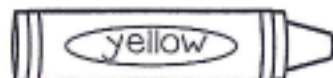

With a yelp, Helen leapt in the air. The furry blob moved, and Helen's mind raced. Was there a monster under her bed? As the lightning flashed, Helen could see green eyes glowing under the bed. She grabbed the book from her nightstand and raised it high in case she needed to attack.

Just then, Helen's bedroom door opened and her mom flipped on the light. "Honey, is everything okay?" A little black blur darted out from under the bed- and Helen laughed.

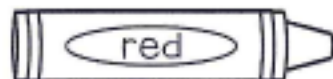

"Oh, it's Shadow! How did you sneak in?" Helen picked up the cat, who lived next door. Petting her silky fur, Helen whispered, "I'll take you home in the morning. Don't scare me like that, Kitty!"

Who came in to check on Helen?

What did Helen think was under her bed?

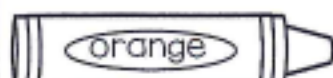

Where does the cat live?

Why did Helen pick up a book?

How did Shadow's fur feel?

When will Helen take the cat home?
